FOREWORD

Reporting systems are necessary. However, which of the reporting requirements in each system are essential in every respect? Which can be revised in terms of reductions in scope or frequency, improved formats, simplified procedures, better content, and other improvements? Which should be eliminated entirely? Moreover, should certain proposed reporting requirements be instituted if the information can be obtained from existing sources.

These questions introduce us to the objective of our Reports Management Program. In brief, a continuing review of reporting requirements to result in fewer reports, better reports, at a saving in manpower and materials.

Accomplishing this objective depends upon a continuing appraisal of reports at their "grass roots" level. You, the operating personnel, can do much to provide management with recommendations from that perspective. Frank, constructive criticism for the improvement of this Office's reports, and the Program in general, will always be welcomed

Section I. GENERAL

1. Objectives.

a. In inaugurating a Reports Management Program, our Office has five objectives:

- (1) Eliminate and prevent unnecessary reporting.
- (2) Insure that necessary reports supply adequate data and that realistic reporting intervals are established.
- (3) Insure that reporting forms, instructions, and procedures for necessary reports are clear and complete, and provide simple correct methods of reporting.
- (4) Provide management with the types of reports which will better enable it to carry out its assigned functions.
- (5) Provide a central point of information on reports.

b. To inaugurate the Reports Management Program, two initial steps must be taken: (1) Accurately inventory those reports encompassed by the Program's scope, and (2) review these reports to determine whereby improvements can be initially effected. Accomplishing objective (1) will provide the Area Records Officer with material needed to establish information and analysis files on reports under his cognizance. Objective (2) makes possible an initial twofold analysis of each report inventoried, i.e., an analysis from the standpoint of offices requiring reports as well as a review in consideration of those offices which prepare and submit reports. Requiring offices will be expected to review their reporting requirements for possible improvements and to justify the need for each report; preparing offices will be given an opportunity to recommend such improvements as reductions in the scope or frequency of reports, consolidations, procedural improvements, design of reports forms, etc.

2. Definitions.

a. Administrative or Management Report - Any written narrative, tabular, punch card, or graphic information transmitted from one organizational element to another for the purpose of providing administrative or management control of operations.

CONFIDENTIAL

b. Recurring Report - Either a periodic report which conveys essentially the same type of information regularly at prescribed intervals, or a situation report which is prepared upon each occurrence of an event of certain prescribed characteristics.

c. Required Report (Incoming Report) - A report which a particular organizational element requires from one or more other elements. The report is an incoming report to the office which requires it.

d. Prepared Report (Outgoing Report) - A report which a particular organizational element prepares at the request of another element. The report is an outgoing report from the office which prepares it.

3. Program Scope. Appendix A lists those reports and documents exempted from the Reports Management Program. The Program will therefore encompass all other administrative and management reports submitted between elements of the Comptroller's Office and: (1) Other components of the Office, (2) other components of Headquarters, (3) any [REDACTED] field station, or (4) any organization (Federal or private) outside CIA. Emphasis is placed on managing recurring reports. However, this does not preclude screening requirements for one-time reports, if by such examination unnecessary reporting can be prevented.

Section II. INSTALLING THE PROGRAM

1. Responsibilities.

a. Area Records Officer.

(1) Advise operating personnel on the method of conducting the initial inventory and analysis of reports.

(2) Ensure that inventories and analyses are completed according to schedule.

(3) Collect inventory and analysis material from operating personnel and assist the Chairman of the Reports Review Panel with the development of meeting agenda.

(4) Serve as recorder of the Reports Review Panel.

(5) Notify Panel members of meetings.

(6) Compile the report of accomplishment described in Section II, Paragraph 2e.

b. Operating Personnel.

(1) Collect and assemble the material required in conducting the reports inventory.

(2) Perform an initial analysis of each report under their purview, using Forms T-1 and T-2 (Appendices C and D) to record their findings and recommendations.

(3) Serve on the Reports Review Panel as requested.

c. Reports Review Panel Members. Review each report inventoried, applying the same criteria used by operating personnel during their preliminary analyses of reports. It is emphasized that the review of a report will not be considered complete until disposition of the report is agreed upon by all voting members of the Panel. Reporting requirements on which full agreement cannot be reached shall be forwarded to the Deputy Comptroller for resolution.

d. Reports Advisory Staff, General Services Office.

(1) Assist the Area Records Officer and personnel at the working level conducting the inventory and analysis of reports.

(2) Serve on the Reports Review Panel in a non-voting advisory capacity.

(3) Provide liaison between the Reports Review Panel and organizational elements outside the Office of the Comptroller, when reports concerning other elements are being reviewed.

2. Procedures.

a. Conducting the Inventory - The responsibility for taking a complete and accurate reports inventory rests with operating personnel who have the most detailed knowledge of the organizational element's reporting requirements. Personnel in this category shall take the following action for each required or prepared report under their cognizance:

(1) Required Reports.

(a) Complete an original and one copy of Required Reports Analysis Sheet, Form T-1 (Appendix C).

(b) To the original of each Form T-1 attach one copy of the directive (or directives) requiring the report and one sample copy of the report.

(2) Prepared Reports.

(a) Complete an original and one copy of Prepared Reports Analysis Sheet, Form T-2 (Appendix D).

CONFIDENTIAL

(b) To the original of each Form T-2 attach one copy of the directive (or directives) requiring the report and one sample copy of the report or report form, if this material can be readily obtained without undue reproduction costs.

NOTE: The importance of taking a complete and accurate inventory cannot be overemphasized. Completed Forms T-1 and T-2, and accompanying material, will not only provide the Reports Review Panel with a basis for its review, but also will constitute basic material for the establishment of information and analysis files by the Area Records Officer. Persons conducting the inventory are therefore urged to assemble the required material as completely and accurately as possible to increase its value to the Panel and the Area Records Officer.

b. Individual Analysis of Reports - Concurrently with taking the inventory, operating personnel shall analyze each report under their purview. Forms T-1 and T-2 contain questions establishing criteria by which required and prepared reports shall be evaluated. Appendix B provides a further guide for analyzing required reports. To apply these criteria, operating personnel should perform as a minimum the following analyses for the type of report indicated:

ACTION	REQUIRED REPORTS	PREPARED REPORTS
(1) Examine all related reports for evidence of duplication.	X	X
(2) Review a series of reports to determine if information reported reflects changes of such significance to justify the reporting frequency, or whether situation reports could be summarized.	X	X
(3) Determine the number of times the preparing office was unable to meet the due date for the report. What overtime was required?		X
(4) Question what actions were taken on the basis of information reported. Was full utilization made of the information? Is any action being taken at all, or is information being gathered because "it's nice to know," or because some day there may be a use for it.	X	X

ACTION	REQUIRED REPORTS	PREPARED REPORTS
(5) Examine reports in light of supervision or inspections which have been (or could be) performed. Would such supervision or inspection serve the same purpose as the report now being submitted?	X	X
(6) Examine copies of reports for adequacy of form or format. Has sufficient space been provided for "fill in?" If the report is on a printed form can it be submitted without a transmittal letter? Does the weight of paper used in preparing the report prevent the typing of legible copies? If copies are duplicated, does the preparation of masters (stencils, ditto, etc.) require considerable typing of headings and hand ruling of columns? If so, perhaps a preprinted master should be used.	X	X
(7) Consider the records and procedures used to prepare the report. Are files arranged in such a manner that data can be readily extracted? Do fiscal and other accounting records contain control totals so that the accuracy of detailed data can be checked? Is it possible to carry fiscal or other accounting data on a cumulative basis to eliminate last minute workloads? For historical, progress, and other documentary-type reporting, is a brief running record of significant events and accomplishments maintained to avoid trying to "think back" over a period? Could machine tabulation procedures be used to prepare the report?	X	X
(8) Are directives which require the report adequate with respect to the criteria outlined in Appendix B.	X	X

Personnel analyzing reports shall record their findings on the original and copy of each Form T-1 and T-2 used in taking the inventory. Be thorough in your analysis, accurate in stating your appraisal. Fully justify the need for each required report; do not hesitate to make recommendations on reports you prepare.

c. Submission of Material to the Area Records Officer. Upon completing their analyses, personnel assigned the responsibility for examining reports shall submit completed Forms T-1 and T-2, together with supporting material, to the Area Records Officer. This material should be forwarded approximately five working days prior to the date the Reports Review Panel is scheduled to review the reports of a particular organizational element.

d. Review of Reports by the Reports Review Panel.

(1) The Reports Review Panel shall convene as necessary to review each report inventoried and analyzed. During these reviews the same criteria applied by the working-level analysts shall govern the Panel's approval of a report. If Panel members consider it necessary, they may request persons who analyzed reports to appear before the Panel to provide additional information or to justify more fully the need for a required report.

(2) As reviews are completed, the Panel should develop recommendations on each report susceptible to cancellation, reduction in scope or frequency, format revision, procedural improvement, etc. Recommendations on reports which are prepared for submission outside this Office shall be developed in memorandum form for the signature of the Comptroller. Recommendations for improving or cancelling reports which organizational elements of this Office require will be transmitted by memoranda to cognizant divisions or branches. Target dates should be established for accomplishing recommendations or further studies which cannot be effected immediately.

(3) The Area Records Officer shall attend each Panel meeting to serve as recorder. In this capacity he will assist Panel members with their review while concurrently recording findings and accomplishments. It is anticipated that this procedure will provide the Area Records Officer with material for establishing Reports Management Program records and compiling an accomplishment report, while relieving Panel members of administrative burden.

e. Compilation of an Accomplishment Report - Upon completion of reviews by the Panel, the Area Records Officer will collect material (case studies, analysis sheets, etc.) on each report reviewed. From this material he shall compile the following data for submission to the Comptroller by 29 January 1954:

(1) The number of required reports inventoried at the beginning of the review.

(2) The number of required reports cancelled during the review.

(3) The number of required reports added during the review.

(4) The number of required reports remaining after the review.

CONFIDENTIAL

(5) The number of required reports revised during the review to afford improvements in terms of simplification, reduction of frequency, etc.

(6) The annual man-hour savings resulting from the cancellation and improvement of required reports.

(7) The number of prepared reports inventoried and reviewed.

(8) The estimated annual man-hour savings that would result if the Reports Review Panel's recommendations on prepared reports were found acceptable to organizational elements outside the Office of the Comptroller which require the reports.

(9) A brief on those recommendations which cannot be placed into effect immediately, with estimated target dates for their accomplishment.

Section III. OPERATING THE PROGRAM

1. Responsibilities.

a. Area Records Officer.

(1) Establish and maintain for each report encompassed by the Program those records described in Paragraph 2 of this Section.

(2) Employ the use of a follow-up system similar to that described in Paragraph 2b of this Section to provide for a periodic analysis and review of each report required or prepared by this Office.

(3) Assist operating personnel with their scheduled periodic re-appraisal of reports.

(4) Assist the Reports Review Panel Chairman with the development of meeting schedules and agenda.

(5) Serve as a permanent member of the Reports Review Panel in the capacity of recorder.

(6) Notify Panel members of scheduled meetings.

(7) Confer with Reports Management Staff, General Services Office, on matters which cannot be resolved at the Area Records Officer's level.

(8) Compile Program accomplishment reports as requested.

(9) Develop and disseminate Program publicity.

CONFIDENTIAL

b. Operating Personnel.

(1) In accordance with Paragraph 3 of this Section clear all directives originated within the Office of the Comptroller which either institute a new reporting requirement or prescribe revisions to one in existence.

(2) Forward to the Area Records Officer a copy of each approved directive and supporting material that institutes, cancels, or modifies either a required or prepared report of the type encompassed by this Program.

(3) Conduct a periodic working-level reappraisal of reports as scheduled by the Area Records Officer.

(4) Serve in a permanent or temporary capacity as members of the Reports Review Panel upon request of the Comptroller or the Panel Chairman.

c. Reports Review Panel.

(1) Convene periodically to review those reports reappraised at the working level.

(2) Convene as necessary to approve directives originated in the Office of the Comptroller which either institute a new reporting requirement or prescribe revisions to one in existence.

d. Reports Advisory Staff, General Services Office.

(1) Assist personnel in the Office of the Comptroller whose responsibilities are set forth in this Guide.

(2) Serve on the Reports Review Panel in a non-voting advisory capacity when requested.

(3) Provide liaison between the Office of the Comptroller and other CIA organizational elements when reports concerning these other elements are being studied.

2. Area Records Officer's Reports Records.

a. Case Files.

(1) The Area Records Officer shall establish and maintain a folder on each required or prepared report encompassed by the Program. Material collected during the initial reports inventory and review described in Section II will constitute a basis for establishing these files. Thereafter, additional case folders shall be established as new reporting requirements are instituted. Existing case files will be kept current or cancelled as changes occur in the reporting requirements they document.

CONFIDENTIAL

(2) To the extent possible, case folders should fully document the history and current status of a report. The file on each report should therefore contain the following in the order indicated:

(a) A specimen copy of the report (if available) or a sample of the report form.

(b) A copy of each directive requiring the report, and if available, instructions for the report's preparation.

(c) Related papers such as source records, procedures, analyses, surveys, memoranda, etc. pertaining to the report.

(d) Forms T-1, Required Reports Analysis Sheet; T-2, Prepared Reports Analysis Sheet; or T-3, Request for Approval of a New or Revised Reporting Requirement (Appendix E), as appropriate.

(3) The label of each folder should contain the title of the report and a subject-numeric file index taken from the Handbook for the Subject Classification and Filing of Correspondence Records, Report titles should be stated with a key functional word first, in order that the case folder may be readily identified. For example, "Monthly Report of Per Diem Allowances" would be stated "Per Diem Allowances; Monthly Report of." It follows that "Per Diem Allowances" is a more precise key than "Monthly Report of" since many monthly reports exist. A completed folder label for the report used in the above example would appear as follows:

PER DIEM ALLOWANCES; MONTHLY REPORT OF

ACCOUNTING 2-1
PER DIEM

The Handbook for the Subject Classification and Filing of Correspondence Records provides further information on the preparation of case folders and their filing arrangement.

b. Reports Follow-up File. The successful continuance of a Reports Management Program is based in part upon a periodic post audit of each reporting requirement encompassed by the Program. As a means of scheduling these reviews, the Area Records Officer shall maintain a follow-up card on each report. It is recommended that plain 5" x 8" or 3" x 5" cards be used. Each card should bear the report title, the subject numeric file index, and the date upon which a reappraisal of the report will be instituted. The card file should be indexed by month, and within each monthly breakdown arranged according to the scheduled reappraisal date. Cards for a current month may be separated by daily guides numbered from 1 through 31, if the number of reports to be reviewed justifies this arrangement.

CONFIDENTIAL

c. Alphabetical Cross-file. The Area Records Officer may desire to maintain an alphabetical index of those reports under his cognizance. It is recommended that a plain 5" x 8" or 3" x 5" card be used for each report. Each card should reflect the report's title (stated with a key functional word first) and the subject-numeric file index. Additional information may be kept on these cards; however, extensive posting to them is discouraged since case folders should fully document each report.

d. Accomplishment Records. To be in a position to report Program accomplishment and to develop Program publicity, the Area Records Officer should draft briefs on major accomplishments, and projects or surveys being undertaken. Moreover, a record of the following actions should be maintained:

- (1) The number of proposed reports:
 - (a) Received and approved.
 - (b) Developed and approved.
 - (c) Disapproved.
- (2) The number of reports revised:
 - (a) To provide more adequate data.
 - (b) To reduce paperwork.
 - (c) For miscellaneous changes.
- (3) The number of existing reports cancelled.
- (4) The number of report directives developed or revised.
- (5) The current reports inventory by:
 - (a) Prepared reports.
 - (b) Required reports.

3. Procedure for Securing Approval of Reporting Requirements Originated within the Office of the Comptroller.

a. Category of Reports Requiring Approval.

(1) For purposes of approving new reporting requirements or revisions to those in existence, reports required by organizational elements of the Office of the Comptroller can be divided into three groups:

(a) Those that are required from CIA organizational elements outside the Office of the Comptroller.

(b) Those that cut across division or staff lines (i.e., required by a division or staff from another division or staff).

CONFIDENTIAL

(c) Those that are required by an organizational element within a staff or division from other elements within the same staff or division.

b. Submission of Requests for Approval.

(1) Reporting requirements falling within categories (a) and (b) above shall be approved only by the Reports Review Panel. Category (c) reporting requirements shall be approved by the chiefs of divisions or staffs. To secure an approval, personnel shall submit the following material to either the Reports Review Panel Chairman (through the Area Records Officer), or the chief of their division or staff, as appropriate:

(a) An original and one copy of Form T-3, Request for Approval of a New or Revised Reporting Requirement (Appendix E).

(b) An original and one copy (in draft form) of the directive which proposes the reporting requirement.

(c) Any supporting material which will assist approving officials with their review.

c. Review of Requests by Staff or Division Chief - Upon receipt of a request, staff or division chiefs shall thoroughly review the reporting requirement to ensure that every aspect is justified. It is recommended that during this review officials apply the criteria for analyzing reports outlined in Appendix B and Section II of this Guide. If necessary, the reviewing official should confer with the originator of the reporting requirement, as well as with representatives of those offices which will be required to submit the report. Assistance can also be obtained from the Area Records Officer and the material maintained in his files.

d. Review of Requests by the Area Records Officer and the Reports Review Panel.

(1) Requests directed to the Reports Review Panel for approval shall be subjected to a preliminary analysis by the Area Records Officer. From an examination of his files, he shall determine whether the proposed reporting requirement duplicates any portion of an existing report. Moreover, he shall analyze the proposal to ensure that the requirement meets every criteria for a sound reporting system. The Area Records Officer shall note his findings and recommendations and forward all material pertaining to the report to the Chairman of the Reports Review Panel.

(2) Upon receipt of a request from the Area Records Officer, the Chairman shall convene permanent panel members, the Area Records Officer, and representatives of organizational elements vitally concerned with the proposed reporting requirement. The latter will serve as temporary voting members. A thorough review of the proposal will be performed in view of the findings and recommendations of the Area Records Officer and facts presented by other Panel members. It is emphasized that the review will not be considered complete until disposition of the proposed reporting requirement is agreed upon by all voting members. Reporting requirements on which complete agreement cannot be reached shall be forwarded to the Deputy Comptroller for resolution.

e. Notification of Action Taken on Requests - Upon completion of a review, the chief of a division or staff, or the Reports Review Panel Chairman, as appropriate, shall record his decision on the original and copy of Form T-3. The copy of Form T-3 together with all material originally submitted, shall be returned to the originator of the proposed reporting requirement. The original of Form T-3 shall be forwarded to the Area Records Officer.

4. Procedure for Scheduling and Conducting Periodic Reappraisals of Reports.

a. Scheduling Reappraisals.

(1) To be effective, a Reports Management Program must provide not only for the review of new reporting requirements prior to their establishment, but also for scheduled periodic reappraisal of reports in existence. Programs on which information is reported accelerate or decelerate; changes in organizations take place; new forces and trends take effect; etc. Therefore, a periodic re-evaluation of reporting systems is essential to ensure that reports are serving the purposes for which they were instituted.

(2) It is difficult to set forth in specific terms the frequency for reappraising individual reporting requirements, or several requirements constituting a reporting system. However, intervals between these reviews shall not exceed the following periods:

(a) Six months after the institution of a new reporting requirement, or a major revision to one in existence, originated within the Office of the Comptroller.

(b) Twelve months after the first post audit prescribed by (a) above.

(c) Twelve months for all other required or prepared reports encompassed by the Program.

(3) The Area Records Officer shall be responsible for maintaining a follow-up file (See Paragraph 2b of this Section) on each report, to ensure that reappraisals are undertaken according to a realistic and effective schedule. In scheduling these reviews, the Area Records Officer should consider three factors: (a) The need for a re-evaluation based upon changing conditions; (b) the desirability of appraising reports by functional groups under some circumstances; and (c) the desirability of staggering reviews throughout the year for an even distribution of workload. When in doubt about establishing a schedule the Area Records Officer should always confer with the Chairman of the Reports Review Panel or representatives of offices concerned with a report.

NOTE: It is emphasized that reappraisal schedules shall be established for required as well as prepared reports. Only in this manner can we provide for a twofold analysis of reports from the standpoint of problems at both levels--the requiring office and the preparing office.

b. Inaugurating Reappraisals by the Area Records Officer - Scheduled reappraisals shall be accomplished on an individual basis by the same method used to analyze and review the entire inventory of reports during the installation phase of the Program. To inaugurate a reappraisal, the Area Records Officer shall take the following action (or actions) appropriate to the type of report being examined:

(1) Using an original and one copy of Form Memo T-4 (Appendix F), forward three blank copies of Form T-1 or T-2 to each organizational element concerned with either requiring or preparing the report.

(2) Submit Form Memo T-5 (Appendix G) in duplicate to each CIA organizational element outside the Office of the Comptroller which submits the report to an element within this office.

c. Analysis of Reports by Operating Personnel and Submission of Material to the Area Records Officer - Upon receipt of a Form Memo T-4, operating personnel shall conduct a thorough analysis of the report. To avoid repetition, attention is invited to Paragraph 2b of Section II, and Appendix B, which provide guidance for analyzing reports. At the completion of their analyses, operating personnel shall forward an original and one copy of completed Forms T-1 or T-2, together with supporting material, to the Area Records Officer. The reverse of Form Memo T-4 may be used for this purpose.

d. Review of Reports by the Reports Review Panel.

(1) On the basis of material submitted by operating personnel, the Area Records Officer shall develop an agenda for the review of reports by the Reports Review Panel. The Reports Review Panel shall convene as necessary to review each report analyzed. During these reviews the same criteria applied by the working-level analysts shall govern the Panel's approval of a report. If Panel members consider it necessary, they may request persons who analyzed reports to appear before them to provide additional information or to justify more fully the need for a required report.

(2) As reviews are completed, the Panel should develop recommendations on each report susceptible to cancellation, reduction in scope or frequency, format revision, procedural improvement, etc. Recommendations on reports which are prepared for submission outside this Office shall be developed in memorandum form for the signature of the Comptroller. Recommendations for improving or cancelling reports which organizational elements of this Office require will be transmitted by memoranda to cognizant divisions or branches. Target dates should be established for accomplishing recommendations or further studies which cannot be effected immediately.

(3) The Area Records Officer shall attend each Panel meeting to serve as recorder. In this capacity he will assist Panel members with their review while recording findings and accomplishments. It is anticipated that this procedure will provide the Area Records Officer with material for maintaining Reports Management Program records while relieving Committee members of administrative burden.

5. Submission of Reports Material to the Area Records Officer. The successful continuance of our Reports Management Program depends to a major degree upon the adequacy of the Area Records Officer's records. It is therefore incumbent upon each person responsible for a reporting requirement to forward to the Area Records Officer a copy of any correspondence changing the status of a report. In addition, they should forward specimen copies of revised reports or report forms, and any revisions to former instructions for preparing the report. This material is desired each time one of the following actions occur:

- a. Upon the issuance of a directive for an approved new or revised reporting requirement originated within the Office of the Comptroller.
- b. Upon the receipt of a new or revised reporting requirement from a source outside the Office of the Comptroller.
- c. Upon the cancellation of any reporting requirement.

GUIDE FOR ANALYZING REQUIRED REPORTS

Persons assigned the responsibility for analyzing reports required by their organizational element should determine first that the over-all need for the report is fully justified. Consider the following questions:

1. Does the report and individual items therein duplicate existing reports or items in other reports?
2. Is the information required by your office appropriate to its assigned functions, responsibilities, and authority?
3. Is the information required by your office actually and actively used as a basis for actions, plans, or decisions, and do these uses fully justify the cost required to prepare the report?
4. Is information reported in more detail, submitted more frequently, or given wider distribution than is necessary to serve the purposes for which the report was established?
5. Does the need for the report result from an organizational or procedural problem which should be corrected, rather than reported?
6. Is the report designed to serve a purpose which could be accomplished more effectively some other way, such as through direct supervision or inspection?

Once it has been determined that there is a valid need for the report, and each item therein, consideration should be given to the following:

1. Reporting Frequency. The reporting frequency must be consistent with the frequency with which you utilize the information reported. More frequent reporting is not justifiable.
2. Due Date. The date a report is due in your office should, if possible, be one convenient to the reporting activity. Whenever possible, end-of-month, end-of-quarter, and end-of-year reporting should be avoided since reporting workloads are heaviest at these times. Moreover, due dates should be based on working days, not calendar days.

3. Use of a Form. Consideration should be given to requiring that the report be submitted on a standardized form. A form offers these advantages:

a. Reports submitted on forms are considerably easier to prepare than letter-type reports.

b. Standard presentation of information enables you, the recipient, to locate items in the report more readily.

c. Instructions for preparation and submission of the report can be placed on the form for ready reference.

d. Forms are not always subject to the same mail and file processing as letter-type material. They can be pre-addressed thereby eliminating the need for transmittal letters.

4. Report Directive. Consideration should be given to the adequacy of directives requiring reports. Remember the proportion: "The quality of a report coming into an office is directly proportional to the quality of the directive requiring its submission." Consider these points:

a. PROVIDING A SINGLE SOURCE OF INSTRUCTIONS

Cancel all previous directives which required the report, incorporating necessary past instructions in the new directive as an aid to personnel preparing reports.

b. PURPOSE AND USE

State clearly the purposes or uses of the data being collected. The office which prepares the report needs to know the purposes and uses to (1) assure that the data reported will accomplish the objectives intended, and (2) make more accurate decisions in doubtful cases.

c. REPORT TITLE

Indicate the correct title of the report for later identification. Titles should be descriptive of contents.

- d. DUE DATE
OF REPORT Specify the date on which the report is to arrive at its destination. For situation reports, specify how soon the report must be received after occurrence of the event. Establish a due date for a recurring report which allows the reporting workload to be more evenly distributed by the offices preparing and receiving the report.
- e. PERIOD OR SITUATION
COVERED Specify the period of time, 'as of' date, or precise situation to be covered by the report. If data from several different reports are to be correlated, assure that the periods covered in these reports are comparable.
- f. FIRST SUBMISSION
OF THE REPORT Specify when the requirement becomes effective, such as the date that the first recurring report is to be received, or the first period to be covered.
- g. TERMINATION
OF REPORT For a temporary report, specify exactly when it is to be discontinued.
- h. PREPARING
